FORMER CHUMS OF MRS. EVELYN THAW HELP JEROME SET MANY TRAPS FOR HER ON STAND

PRESIDENT FAVORS ATHLETES AS AGAINST MOLLYCODDLES.

"As I emphatically disbelieve in seeing Harvard or any other college turn out mollycoddles instead of vigorous men, I may add that I do not in the least object to a sport because it is rough. Rowing, baseball, lacrosse, track and field games, hockey, football are all of them good."—From the President's great speech at Harvard University to-day. See Page 3 of this issue.

TWO SHOT BY MAN ATTACKED WITH KNIVES

Religious Argument Ends in Double Tragedy on a Brooklyn Pier.

SHOOTER IS ARRESTED.

Victims Hurried Dying to Hospital—Declares His Life Was In Danger.

Francesco Palmazzo, forty-seven years old, of No. 6 Richards street, and Lorenzo Napoli, of No. 484 Degraw street, Brooklyn, were mortally shot this afternoon on the Atlantic Docks by Dominico Sarranoni, whom they were endeavoring to puncture with stilettos as they shoved him down the pier toward the ice-filled river.

All three were employed as stevedores and quarrelled as the result of an argument on religion. Sarranoni advanced an unpopular opinion whereupon Palmazzo and Napoli got out their knives and attacked him, driving him in the direction of the pier head. He was dangerously near the edge when he drew a revolver and emptied its contents at the two men.

Palmazzo got a bullet near the heart and Napoli was shot through the head. When they fell Sarranoni fled, pursued by the two men until he reached Atlantic avenue and Van Brunt street, by threatening them with the revolver.

The big gun was empty, however, and it didn't phase Detective Hines, of the Hamilton avenue station, who clubbed him over the head and took away the weapon. He was locked up after frankly confessing the shooting, declaring that he had done so in self-defense. The two injured men were taken to the Long Island College Hospital in a dying condition.

STARVING GIRL SAID SISTERS PUT HER OUT.

A girl of about fifteen years, poorly clad and barely able to stand, on her feet was a prisoner to-day in the Yorkville Police Court. Through an interpreter she said she was Annie Palmara, a homeless waif. She came over from Russia three months ago and went to live with two sisters in One Hundred and Eighty-fifth street, near Jerome avenue.

"She says she has been wandering about in the streets for two weeks," reported the interpreter to the Court. "Her sisters turned her out, and told her she was old enough to earn her own living. She has had nothing to eat for two days and is nearly frozen to death."

Within a minute hands began to get into pockets, and none came out empty. Coins were dropped into the hands of Mrs. Smith, the probation officer at Yorkville, and she took charge of the starving girl. The little prisoner was sent down to Bellevue Hospital in her custody.

Don't forget that THE WORLD is read in more New York City homes and offices than any other newspaper. That's what makes THE WORLD "Want" pay.

VICTIMS SWARM TO IDENTIFY THE LOOT OF ROBBERS

Booty of Flat-house Burglars Now Nearly $100,000.

$20,000 IS THEIR GAIN.

One Captive Says He Was Once Valet of Bishop Potter.

I looked like a bargain sales man at the West Sixty-eighth street station to-day when dozens of men and women from all over Manhattan Island, from Brooklyn, from Williamsburg and even from Jersey City swarmed into the back rooms to examine ten dress suit cases full of jewelry and trinkets—part of the loot of the gang of boy and girl flat-house burglars who were captured yesterday. The scrambling visitors were housekeepers who had been robbed by members of the group of youthful, wily rogues, and they came to identify their own property.

Before night, it was stated, the detectives expected to arrest two pawnbrokers for having knowingly received stolen goods from the three young women and nine precocious youths who made up the crew of furnished-room depredators. Information against the two suspected pawnbrokers had been embodied in the confessions of George Chartier, the leading juvenile, and Marshal Haltinger, the leading gentleman and heavy of the company.

It is now said that the total value of the spoils gathered by the prisoners in the last few weeks or months will easily amount to $100,000. Pawn tickets for over $3,000 were found yesterday by the police in their search of the three recalcitrant of the accused boys and girls. In all 108 of these tell-tale tickets were recovered. Nobody, not even any of the thieves themselves knows how much stolen stuff was sold out-right.

Wear Jewelry Worth $10,000.

The jewelry that was found concealed in the rooms of their meeting places or that was worn upon the persons of the busy thieves is easily worth more than $10,000. It was this that filled the ten dress suit cases at the police station.

Not until to-day did the detectives solve the secret of the suave manner and almost clerical polish and repose of Marshal Haltinger, who was one of the first to confess. When he first appeared at Haltinger, alias Frank, alias Frank, said he was a car conductor and that he lived at No. 48 West One Hundred and Eighty-fifth street. Now he has supplemented that statement by announcing that he was formerly valet to Bishop Henry C. Potter. He is thirty-one years old, good-looking and dapper, and when he smiles he makes you think of a Nevada mining prospect. All his upper teeth are of gold. Amelia Seyd, the so-called "big" gang, was still very much at her ease as she sat in her cell in the West Side Court prison to-day. To her there came A. U. Giallonsi, the well-known Italian lawyer, to serve upon her the papers in a divorce suit which her husband, a prosperous provision dealer of Amsterdam avenue and One Hundred and Fifty-seventh street, has filed since her arrest.

No Hope for Reconciliation.

She abandoned him early in January about the time the flat-house robbers began making profitable tours about town in their armored automobile. The husband was still hoping for a reconciliation, when he found that she had been locked up with her ten companions.

She admits that she is Savino's wife, but insists on calling herself Miss Amelia. She is a really beautiful young woman, a Genovese by birth, with big blue eyes and a rich olive skin. She seems more concerned with keeping her picture hat and her long pongee cloak fresh and jaunty in the prison than with the charges that are hourly multiplying against her.

CHICAGO FLYER IS HURLED INTO RIVER AND 54 ARE HURT

Not a Passenger Escapes as Broken Brake Gear Hurls Fast Pennsylvania Train from Tracks Down Bank Into Conemaugh.

(Special to The Evening World.)

JOHNSTOWN, Pa., Feb. 23.—As if by a miracle all of the fifty-four passengers on the Pennsylvania Special, the famous eighteen-hour flyer between New York and Chicago, escaped with their lives when the train of four Pullman cars plunged down a steep embankment into the Conemaugh River just after midnight at Black Diamond, eight miles east of this city. But not a single passenger came out of the wreck uninjured, and several of them are not expected to recover.

The flyer was forty-six minutes behind schedule time, and the engineer was under orders to make the greatest possible speed in order that the special might arrive in Chicago on time. Down the mountain grade he was making no less than seventy miles an hour, when a bolt broke in the brake-rigging of the forward car and the big brake-shoe dropped down. It literally tore up the track for a distance of more than three hundred yards before the engineer could bring the flyer to a standstill.

The four cars behind, rocked and rolled along for a hundred yards over the broken track before they toppled over and plunged down the embankment. Instantly every light in the cars was extinguished and the passengers were left in impenetrable darkness. How any of them ever managed to get out of the wreck alive must ever remain a mystery.

ROOSEVELT AT CHRISTENING OF OLD CHUM'S BABY

President Stands as Godfather in Round of Busy Day.

BOSTON, Feb. 23.—President and Mrs. Roosevelt, who came to Massachusetts to pay a flying visit to their sons at Harvard and at Groton school, arrived here to-day after an uneventful journey from Washington.

Friends met the visitors at their train and the President was driven to the home of Dr. H. S. Bigelow, an old Harvard College classmate, and Mrs. Roosevelt, with her daughter, Miss Ethel, and Congressman and Mrs. Nicholas Longworth, to the home of Mr. and Mrs. George C. Lee, of Chestnut Hill. Later Mrs. Roosevelt and Miss Ethel went to Groton.

The President divided the forenoon between his stay at Dr. Bigelow's and the christening of the son of Capt. Guy Murchie, a classmate and a Rough Rider.

The christening, which occurred at the home of Capt. Murchie at 11 o'clock, was quite an affair in its way, a number of relatives and friends being present. Mr. Roosevelt acted as godfather and took an active interest in the ceremony.

After the ceremony the President went to Cambridge by automobile, was the guest at lunch of the Sphinx Club and later made an address before the Harvard Union.

A tremendous Harvard cheer from two thousand students was given the President as he entered the main hall of the Union. He was escorted to the platform, upon which were Major Henry L. Higginson, founder and President of the Union; Vice-President J. D. White, Robert Bacon, Assistant Secretary of State; Prof. Ira N. Hollis, Chairman of the Board of Trustees; President Lobarron R. Briggs, of Radcliffe College; A. H. Woods, Graduate Secretary of the Intercollegiate Athletic League; and R. L. Bacon, son of Secretary Bacon.

Vice-President White presided and introduced President Roosevelt.

Briggs, of Radcliffe College; A. H. Woods, Graduate Secretary of the Intercollegiate Athletic League; and R. L. Bacon, son of Secretary Bacon.

Vice-President White presided and introduced President Roosevelt.

FLOATING STEEL HOUSE FOR BALLOON EXPERT.

BERLIN, Feb. 23.—The supplementary budget presented to the Reichstag to-day by the Imperial Ministry of Finance includes an appropriation of $15,000 to assist Count Zeppelin in his dirigible experiments, and especially to build for him a floating steel balloon house on Lake Constance.

EMPIRE TRACK'S HARD FIGHT FOR RACING DATES

Counsel Puts Up Strong Argument Before Racing Commissioners.

WANT AUGUST MEETING.

Will Guarantee Purses and Stakes if Board Gives Its Consent.

In plain language and unmistakable terms James H. Soley, counsel for the Empire City track, told the State Racing Commission to-day that unless a license was granted for a racing meeting in August an appeal would be taken to the courts in order to ascertain why such discrimination should be made against the only one of the eight tracks incorporated under the law of 1905.

This implied threat was made in the argument of Mr. Soley before the commission to-day at the offices of Russell & Percy, No. 34 Nassau street, where a hearing was given on the application made by President James Butler for the meeting. Mr. Soley was referring to the application made in January last year, but which was put over for two meetings by absence of members of the commission and which finally, on April 2, when the racing season was already begun, was denied.

"It had been earlier in the season," said Mr. Soley, "I can tell you that an appeal would have been made either to the Governor, the Legislature or the courts, and I sincerely believe with good results. I do not believe that the people of this State would tolerate such an unjust discrimination; such an injustice and display of partiality which was taken by the former Racing Commission to freeze out the Empire Track."

James W. Wadsworth, Chairman, and H. K. Knapp, were the members of the Racing Commission present at the meeting to-day. John Sanford, the third member, was absent. President Butler was seated next to Soley.

A great and important feature of the statement made to the commission was that the people of Westchester County wanted the meeting; that there was popular interest in the track; that the people of the county should be permitted to hold meetings if all provisions of the law had been complied with.

This incorporation had expended $50,000 in a full coat for its plant and in good faith. The law intended that the commission should have a general supervision over racing, and its duties were specifically stated. It was not given to the body even under the amendment of the law to arbitrarily refuse a license to a track which had complied with all the provisions of the law. Race-track or otherwise, formed before this amendment was passed had all the privileges conferred by the Legislature in its original act.

"You have to-day," said Mr. Soley, "eight corporations of this kind—the Westchester, Queens County, Metropolitan, Coney Island, Brighton Beach, Brooklyn, Saratoga and Empire City clubs. They are all alike except in one week. Seven you granted a license a week ago. The Metropolitan was organized last year showing that each track had averaged receipts of $50,000. The others had more than some of the others and whose really holdings of up to $100,000 more valuable received none of this income yet had almost equal expense of maintenance."

JOHN CUNNEEN BURIED.

BUFFALO, N. Y., Feb. 23.—Funeral services for ex-Attorney-General John Cunneen were held to-day at St. Joseph's Cathedral, where a requiem mass was celebrated. Large delegations of lawyers and politicians attended the services and accompanied the body to Albion, where the burial took place.

NEW ORLEANS, Feb. 23.—The popularity of long-distance racing was evident at the Fair Grounds to-day, when one of the biggest crowds of the winter came out to see the running of the Bush Cup Handicap, a race at two and one-quarter miles. There was a cracking good field engaged, and the race promised to furnish one of the most interesting contents of the meeting.

There were other good races on the card, the best being the race at a mile and a sixteenth, with Peter Sterling, Ten Dolan, St. Valentine and Granada engaged.

The other races had good fields, and speculation was brisk. The track was fit for record-breaking. Clear, cool weather prevailed.

GIRL RAN AWAY TO BE A MISSIONARY

The police have been asked to look for fourteen-year-old Mary Clay, of Narberth, Pa., who ran away from a boarding-school in Auburn, N. Y., last week and then came to this city and disappeared. The girl is a daughter of one of the officers of the United States Machinery Company, with offices at No. 45 Park street, Philadelphia.

According to Mr. Clay's statement to the police the girl wanted to be a missionary. After leaving the school she came directly to this city, arriving here on the morning of Feb. 13. She had met a poor woman on the train, to whom she gave all her money.

She didn't have a cent when she got here and went to the Y. M. C. A. building on East Fifth street. From there she was sent to a shelter for respectable girls at No. 212 East Forty-sixth street.

A week ago to-day she and another girl went to a store near their homes. They got upstaged and the girl girl vanished. The following description of the missing girl is being sent out by the police.

Five feet eight inches tall, weight 125 pounds, complexion fair, blue eyes, wears glasses, wears gray suit with short jacket with red rovers, and red hat.

Mazie Follette and Hattie Forsythe Give Prosecutor Information Regarding Her Secret Life Both Before and After Marriage.

COMMISSION IN INSANITY MAY COME NOW AT ANY TIME

Prisoner's Wife Is Almost a Physical Wreck After Her Ordeal Under Jerome's Cross-Examination—Harry Thaw Also Is Close to a Nervous Breakdown.

Harry Thaw's wife and mother both visited him in the Tombs to-day. Young Mrs. Thaw said later that she was ready to resume her ordeal of cross-examination on Monday at the trial of her husband for the murder of Stanford White.

But some of the girl-wife's recent confidence was gone from her bearing. She knows now that not only has her own mother joined the ranks of her enemies and given into Jerome's hands facts with which to confront and confound her, but that two, at least, of her best and oldest chums of the Broadway chorus and the Broadway cafes are now doing all they can to aid the relentless District-Attorney in tearing apart the story she has told of her experiences in Stanford White's hands.

These girls are allies to be feared. One of them has been hostile to Evelyn Thaw for months. Another, it is said, only recently went over to the side of the prosecution.

SHE FEARS NEW SURPRISE.

The former artist's model fears fresh surprises on Monday. She has more than a suspicion that Jerome's deadly bottomless black-grip sack, from which there has already come her mother's statement and her own private notes, written years ago and forgotten, will give up some more unexpected and mysteriously secured documents when the trial of Stanford White's slayer is resumed.

On her visit to-day Mrs. Thaw stayed at the Murderers' Row for over two hours in earnest conversation with her husband. She did not break down as on yesterday. The husband was also able to control himself. Later his mother, Mrs. William Thaw, spent an hour with him.

It was also learned to-day that Jerome is working out a secret plan to discredit the testimony of Evelyn Thaw. In this the prosecutor is being aided by Mazie Follette and Hattie Forsythe, the chorus girls and former intimate friends of young Mrs. Thaw.

These women have given the District-Attorney information because of their sudden enmity to Evelyn Thaw. Both were friends of Stanford White, and they were better acquainted than any one else among White's circle of friends with his affair with Evelyn Nesbit.

It has just been learned that Evelyn Thaw has brought in the name of Mazie Follette more than once during the trial when she whispered secret names to Jerome. The testimony was shown to Mazie Follette.

What she did not know about Stanford White's attentions to Evelyn Nesbit she has got by correspondence with friends. Every line of correspondence has been turned over to Mr. Jerome.

It is said also that Miss Follette has given new information.

When a name is mentioned by Evelyn Thaw in her whispers to Jerome and Justice Fitzgerald, it is recorded and taken to the concealed witness without delay. Every mention of a name has spurred Miss Follette on to giving new information.

Hattie Forsythe is equally bitter against Evelyn Thaw. She is now out of the jurisdiction of the State, but she stands ready to come back to New York when her testimony is required.

Should the District-Attorney not be successful in his undertaking to break down the testimony of Thaw's wife it is expected that he will at once concentrate his efforts to have a lunacy commission appointed to examine Thaw for the purpose of committing Thaw to Mattewan Asylum for the Criminal Insane.

Mr. Jerome has informed members of his staff that Dr. Deemar and Dr. Binham, the two family physicians, can supply all the evidence that is required to prove that Harry Thaw suffers from hereditary insanity, and that his malady has progressed to such a stage that his recovery is impossible.

On the authority of the family physicians, the District-Attorney is connected with the office of the District-Attorney, it is stated to-day that the prosecution stands ready on a moment's notice to make a quick switch and ask that Thaw be committed to the asylum.

It also became known that the cause for the decision among counsel for Thaw arose from the fact that relatives of Thaw hold Mr. Deimar responsible for laying the foundation on which Mr. Jerome may ask for the appointment of a commission to have Thaw committed to an asylum. The feeling is held by at least two of Thaw's counsel, and by relatives of Thaw that Mr. Deimar has gone too far into the insanity defense.

Fears Insane Asylum.

Thaw has a greater horror of the insane asylum than he has for the electric chair. He will take every chance in open court rather than submit himself to a committee of alienists. Thaw also
